Advantages & Disadvantages

- Employer contribution supplementing your investment
- Management fees borne by OVHcloud
- Any dividends reinvested

- Assets are locked in for 5 years i.e. until 14 January 2032
- Risk of capital loss if the OVHcloud share value falls

What happens after you invest?

Your shares are locked in for 5 years…

You hold units in the OVHcloud Shares corporate mutual fund (FCPE), which will itself hold the OVHcloud Shares.
You are therefore an indirect OVHcloud shareholder.

…unless they are released early

The regulations specify cases in which your assets can be released within 5 years as for any investment under the International Group Savings Plan (PEGI).

The list of early release situations and details of how to ask for your assets to be released are available on the information website.

What can you do once the lock-in period ends?

Your assets become available and you can choose to either:

Keep your assets in the FCPE for as long as you want.

Ask for some or all of your assets to be redeemed.

You have until 4 December 2026, 11:59 p.m. CET, to choose to allocate the funds due to you under the global incentive plan to the offer.

If you do not wish to invest all of your global incentive plan in the OVHcloud Shares FCPE, you also have the option of receiving the balance in your bank account, in S$, but you will not receive the employer contribution.

The amount will be converted into local currency according to the exchange rate determined on 5 January 2027.

After 4 December 2026, 11:59 p.m. CET, if you have not stated your choice, you will receive the funds due to you under the global incentive plan in full in your January 2027 pay, without the employer contribution and net of deductions.
